SECTION 2a – STUD CATTLE

SCHEDULE 2025

Under the Biosecurity Act 2014, high risk tick carriers (ie. cattle, buffalo, bison, and deer) must meet their general biosecurity obligation and risk minimisation requirements for moving a high-risk tick carrier into or through the cattle tick free zone.

The owner or person in charge of the livestock must provide a written declaration to an accredited certifier, stating what treatments they have done to their livestock to ensure they meet the risk minimisation requirements. (see attached example). A biosecurity certificate can only be issued by an accredited certifier and must be issued before the movement takes place. The biosecurity certificate provides evidence that the risk minimisation requirements have been met for that movement.

Movement to an agricultural show in the free zone

A biosecurity certificate may be obtained for a high-risk tick carrier being moved from infested land or the cattle tick infested zone to an agricultural show in the cattle tick free zone if the following conditions are met:

- Prior to commencing the movement, the high-risk tick carrier must undergo a manual inspection described in the Procedure for manual inspection of a high-risk cattle tick carrier and must be tick free.
- The carrier must be returned to the point of origin (in the infested zone) within 96 hours of the manual inspection being conducted.
- The travel to and from the agricultural show must be by direct conveyance. The high-risk tick carrier must not be unloaded at a place other than the event grounds.

A copy of the biosecurity certificate for livestock originating from the cattle tick infested area must be provided in conjunction with the NVD Waybill during inspection by local Biosecurity Officers on the day.

For further information, exhibitors can contact their local Biosecurity Office or the Call Centre on 13 25 23 or furthermore visit the website Cattle tick movement regulations | Business Queensland.
